The lost city of Petra is located in the rose-coloured mountains of south-western Jordan. This ancient city was once a busy trading centre and the capital of the Nabatean empire. It had a population of around 20,000. They made spectacular monuments from the pink limestone rock. The city was lost for centuries. Nobody knows exactly when or why people left the city. Today you can visit the ruins on foot, on horseback or by camel.

The statue of Christ the Redeemer is 38 metres high and dominates the city of Rio de Janeiro. When visitors go to the top of the Corcovado mountain to visit the statue, they get a breathtaking view of the city. From there you can see other famous sights: the Sugar Loaf mountain, the Atlantic Ocean, the harbour and the long sandy beaches. As you drive up the narrow road to the top of the mountain, you pass rainforests (slums), rich neighbourhoods and green rainforests.

the most spectacular ruins in my country are at Stonehenge. Stonehenge is an ancient monument built over 4,500 years ago. It consists of a circle of standing stones. Some of the stones are very tall and heavy. They were transported from miles away and were put up by hand. The stones have been used for many different purposes, including as markers for burial sites and as boundaries for fields. Some people believe that Stonehenge was built as a place of worship or sacrifice. Others think it was just a way to mark the passage of time or to celebrate important events in the calendar. Whatever the reason, Stonehenge is one of the most famous and mysterious ancient monuments in the world.
